

Uncle Lem Says

What! Hullo! Hullo, boys. This in Maine takes place on Monday you want to know what the fun for Tudor Gardner will be. Y' Lemuel has been 'up' to Inqui has a cinch on the figures. With or follow won't come down to me to make his vote interesting. I wonder if Tudor was 75,000 men can never tell when his toboggan sledding under it, just how big go, but it's getting dangerous for the audience. I feel sorry for the ladies. He'll be very gay and they will land anything, and thus mighty lonesome. All three nominated for Congress are from Bangor with the exception of the majorities. The talk of Wain district being defeated. Remember that your Uncle Lemuel's heretofore have had no miss.

There are two candidates in County whom I'm a little afraid for personal reasons. One is O. Stinson of Bangor, who is now S. Hatch of Lowell in office to the Legislature. It would mean much to Harry. It would lift for him. He has a chance of election and would doubtless the selection of his daughter, but a slip, off would cause him grief after two years. We favored a fellow two years. We favored a fellow two years in part. He is a young man who is well and every way worthy. It would him a great wrong for one of party to try and defeat him safely. He said that he would like to handle taxes of railroads upon the people. "Nail

And what is the trend in politics at this writing, in the exchange? There are four things each one of the two great parties other prominent men and Among the latter by far the change has been from the expediency to the party in power. And is Mrs. Gertrude M. They secure her any, but may cause her elected to the United States Governor of Maine, to Mr. M. PAUL IN ATHENS AND CORINTH.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 17:18-31.
GOLDEN TEXT—For I determined not to know anything among you save Jesus Christ and him crucified.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Tells of Jesus in Two Great Cities.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Tells of Jesus in Two Great Cities.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Paul As a Worker.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Paul, Preacher and Teacher.

1. Paul Disputing with the Athenians (vv. 18-21).
While waiting for Timothy and Stas, Paul saw the city of Athens wholly given to idolatry. This stirred his spirit. It is the consciousness of the world's lost condition that impels disciples to witness of Christ's saving power.

2. The place (vv. 17-21).
In the synagogue (v. 17).
True to his custom Paul went into the Jewish synagogue and entered into the earnest argument with the Jews and the devout persons there.

(2) In the market place (vv. 17-21).
From the Jews he turned to such as were found in the market place. Here he came into touch with the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. The former were atheistic materialists, denying the doctrine of creation and giving themselves up to sensual indulgence, rejecting the idea of a future judgment. The latter were the Epicureans. When they heard the preaching of Paul they invited him to the Areopagus to speak to them of this new doctrine.

1. Paul's Address on Mars' Hill (vv. 22-34).

1. The introduction (vv. 22-23).
He introduces his discourse in a courteous and conciliatory manner, saying that as he was viewing their city he beheld an altar with an inscription "to the unknown God." This was his point of contact.

2. The body of his discourse (vv. 24-31).
(1) A declaration concerning God (vv. 24, 25).
a. The material universe was created by Him (v. 24).
b. His spirituality and immensity (v. 24). Being essentially spiritual He demands heart worship, and being transcendent He is not confined to earthly temples.

c. His active providence (v. 25). He gives being, bestows native gifts, and as Sovereign directs all things.
(2) A declaration concerning man (vv. 26-31).
a. He is the offspring of God (v. 29). Since men are His offspring and bear His likeness, it is utterly folly to make images to Him.

b. Nations have their place b. God's purpose (v. 26).
c. Men should seek God (v. 27).
d. The present obligation to repent (vv. 30, 31).
3. The results of Paul's address (vv. 32, 34).

(1) Some mocked (v. 32).
(2) Some procrastinated (v. 32).
(3) Some believed (v. 34).
111. Paul in Corinth (Acts 18:1-11).
Paul came to Corinth a stranger. His method of gaining a foothold is worthy of note. His first task was to find a home (v. 2), his second was to earn his daily bread (v. 3).

1. Preaching in the synagogue at Corinth (vv. 4-5).
(1) Time (v. 4).
Every Sabbath day.
(2) Encouraged by the coming of Silas and Timothy (v. 5).
(3) Opposition to Paul (v. 6).
As he increased his activity, opposition also increased.

(4) The purpose to turn to the Gentiles (v. 6).
Because of their blasphemy and opposition he ceased work among the Jews.
(5) He did not go far away (v. 7).
He remained sufficiently near so that those whose hearts God had touched could easily find him.

(6) His success (v. 8).
Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, was converted and Paul departed from his usual custom and baptized him (1 Cor. 1:14). Many others also believed.
3. Paul's vision (v. 9-11).
His experiences since coming to Europe were very trying, therefore he needed encouragement. It is just like the Lord to come when His servant has the greatest need. Note the Lord's words:

(1) "Be not afraid."
(2) "Speak and hold not thy peace."
(3) "I am with thee."
(4) "No man shall set on thee to hurt thee."
(5) "I have much people in this city."

TUBERCULIN TEST WORK,
OXFORD COUNTY

The tuberculin test work in Oxford County has now been completed and the county was added to the list of counties in the Modified Accredited Area on September 1st. This makes a total of thirteen counties now accredited. The three not yet accredited are Aroostook, York and Cumberland. The latter will be recommended for accreditation in the near future, and the work in Aroostook is progressing very rapidly. To date there have been 7710 cattle tested in this county and six reactors found, with about 16,000 more to be tested.

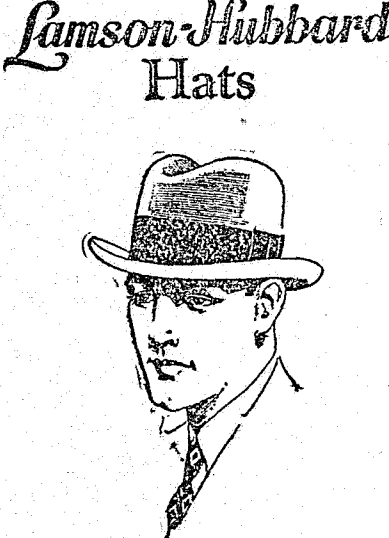

Following is the result of the test work in Oxford County: Total number tested, 18,409; herds, 2,820; reactors, 74, percentage 0.4 per cent. The reactor herds have been retested and as a result of this 12 reactors were found. Ten of these were found in one herd that was badly diseased on first test and it was decided to take the remainder of the herd on re-test to guard against future infection from that source.

Random Notes from Brattleboro, Vermont

From the Old Man Exiled

Words About Rattles
I see Shavey Noyes and Viv Akers have succeeded in stirring up rattlesnakes on paper. It is an achievement. Easily read, and entertaining.

Surely they have poisonous, vicious rattlers here. Some years ago many of the forty have been taken. "Rattlesnake" Houghton made good money. He tanned the hides and extracted the oil. Both readily sold for good money. This industry, like the trout streams, has been overworked and the supply reduced.

Dr. C. R. Aldrich, when a boy, caught rattlers. Saved the skins and sun-dried the oil. He got $4.50 per ounce of the oil at local drug stores. A fair sized rattler would produce two ounces of oil, hence nine dollars. Rattles were much prized as revenue producers.

Maybe the South Paris rattlers—if there are any—will be an industrial revenue producing industry. Who knows? Shavey Noyes and Walter Bacon look on it from a scientific standpoint. I size it up as an additional commercial enterprise. It is worthy of careful investigation.

Am sorry to state that Dr. C. R. Aldrich says rattlesnake oil has nothing over pig's grease for medical purposes. He may be mistaken. Let us hope not.

A few years ago, a dozen or so rattlers were found in a sand pit not far from the Brattleboro depot. Gravel was being excavated for the R. & M. Ry., in the month of March. Rattles hibernated in sand during the cold spell.

Flint Johnson didn't dare cross the railroad track on foot for the two years he lived here. He was afraid of snake bites.

Ed Coburn's Middleham family is numerous about here. Perry, Rice, Kuech, Cressy, Simons, Mealon, Dr. Edwards, Dr. Aldrich, Dunham Brothers, Locke and others.

Democrats are scarce here. I am one, but sick, and am allowed to stay and be looked upon as a curiosity. That is the way Postmaster Sandy Daniels puts it.

No disturbing shrieks of whistles usher in the morn. A postman's night engine bell wakes me at 5:10 a. m. and thus begins the day.

The street cleaners commence work at 5:30 a. m. I hear the swish of their brooms.

A modest curfew sounds at 8:40 p. m. Infants under five are supposed to take to cover. That is Brattleboro.

Two town clocks strike the hour both night and day. One is 20 seconds ahead of the other, but it is in the distance and faintly heard.

At the Memorial Hospital the other day I saw a thin, pale faced girl preparing to leave. She was cured, of what, I don't know. She appeared radiant in happiness as her parents stood about timidly.

Evidently they were titlers of Vermont soil and not overburdened with worldly goods. The happy patient who was leaving, lamented to the doctor her parents' inability to pay him promptly, but said it certainly would be paid sometime.

The good natured doctor said, "If you can pay the hospital bill, you can forget my bill and you need not consider it as a present either. If I get my pay, I'll be how?" asked the inquisitive girl. The doctor, pointing to a man in an auto, said, "You see that man out there? He is a patient of mine and he is going to pay your bill before I get through with him, so don't you worry about it. Go home, get well, and forget it. You owe me nothing."

That is the way some doctors do. Am told this is a very common practice of many successful surgeons and practitioners. Unfortunately, I was the man patient out.

It is a lazy life I'm leading, watching sunshine, rain, and darkness. The latter on wakeful nights when the moon has hidden its face. During the day, the noise of traffic is terrible for a small city. It seems to be all under my window.

The street cars are no more, but the busses, trucks and tractors keep up the noise. It is as it should be. Showing business in Brattleboro, even if it is Republican and I'm looked upon as a curiosity. I am a Democrat.

I have found a job printer, who is a democrat. His name is Chas. P. Spencer and he published the first daily paper ever printed in this city. "The Daily Evening News" and it lived three months to a day. The first copy appeared April 21, 1891.

There were then two strong weekly papers in town which have since combined under one head and is known as the Brattleboro Daily Reformer. I know of no sound reason why Vermonters should be reformed six days out of seven, unless it's necessary to hold the State in the Republican columns.

I went to Springfield the other day. Walter Smith drove, and we went alone. On the route there are seven block signals at crowded crossings. Down and back is 124 miles. There is also a half mile or so of one way road construction.

Of the fourteen signals, ten were set against us, showing red. On the one way road we arrived just out of luck and had to wait, both going and coming. The last car carries a flag and gives it to the man at the other end. In four minutes have seen 35 cars lined up. The last car carries the flag to the officer at the other end and you wait until its return before you are allowed to pass. We have carried the flag twice in one day, hence no wait. From three to four thousand cars pass this way each day.

On some Sundays as many as five thousand cars pass over this one-way strip. New Jersey cars have the reputation of having the most bull-headed drivers and profane language is exchanged.

"Odds and Ends" sale of dry goods opposite my window, had an accident the other morning. The window was being washed and the step ladder tipped, throwing the clerk through it. It was a big one, some 8x10 feet and the crash was immense. Fortunately, the clerk was uninjured. Beaver board was put in bearing a sign, "The Sale Still Continues!"

I recently wanted a clasp envelope. Got one at a stationery store, 10x12 inches, and was charged 7 cents. The same kind and size at the Norway Advertiser sells for two cents each.

The same size, style and make of a woolen undershirt that sells in Norway for $1.50 costs $2.00 here.

Town manager system was commenced last June. The manager comes from a small Massachusetts town and is a civil engineer. People speak kindly of him. He not only has town affairs to manage, but five selectmen as well. He is reported as succeeding.

Edward H. Deavitt of Montpelier is a one term or two year candidate for the nomination for Governor. He claims eight of the counties are for him.

Howard Rice of the Reformer is a candidate for the legislature. Tax collector and deputy sheriff, Fred Cressy wants the same office. The primary election will be held Sept. 11. Considerable political activity is in Vermont paper and in Hotel Brooks.

Uniformed nurses with ether and white robes flitting about is all right for the other fellow. I'd like to be excused. Preferring the gentle art of fishing and giving trouble to the jaws of fish.

Don Seitz is so unkind as to suggest that the fish in Moosehead and in Rapid River are holding a jubilee convention over the distress of their tormenter. It may be so.

A bridge over the Connecticut in Greenfield says: "Erected in 1806." It is a 3 truss affair and the timber is hand-hewn save a few that have been added in later years. It is a two way bridge in good condition. It is made of pumpkin vine. What excellent whitening timber it contains!

Our journey to Springfield takes us through Deerfield and over "Bloody Brook," where the Indians massacred the settlement. There are trout in the brook. Dr. Aldrich says the fish got the red spots from the blood of the slain and have spread it all over New England and elsewhere.

Don C. Seitz of New York and Cos Cob, Conn., spent Sunday, Aug. 26th, with me. In company with Dr. C. R. Aldrich, we went, in the rain, to the height of land on the Mohawk Trail and had dinner at the Sweetheart Inn, at Shelburne Falls.

At this place they served only about 500 dinners or lunches that day. The usual number of a Sunday is from twelve to fourteen hundred.

Miss Brown is reported to be making seventy thousand per year in her roadhouse place. The waitresses are Smith College students.

Brattleboro is the resting place of the much dreaded "Thunderbolt" of Revolutionary days. He is buried in the same yard with Jim Fisk, Jr. I wonder how many of our readers know anything about "Thunderbolt" and his partner and what they did in this country.

A sand-blast machine is working on this building. An old fashioned thrashing machine is silent in comparison to the noise made. It makes the time stained and worn stone columns white and fresh as when first heaved.

REAL CRIME REMEDIES
President Coolidge, in his Memorial Day Address, made some remarks on crime and respect for law and order that are of interest to every American citizen. He said that the best solution of the crime problem goes back to the home and the early training of the child, and that "if around the nation's fireside, respect for authority, reverence for holy things and obedience to parental discipline are taught, the surest foundation for peace will be laid."

We cannot pass laws that will make crime impossible. Efforts in that direction have too often resulted to the advantage of the criminal, by restraining the law-abiding citizen. What we can do is to interpret and expedite our present laws and procedure in such a way, by example, crime will be discouraged. If we add to this, early training that inculcates in the potential citizen an instinctive respect for the rules of society, we will have gone a long way toward law.

Crime, like weeds, flourishes best where it can most easily resist obliteration and escape punishment. The majority of criminals come from families that are either too ignorant or slothful to prepare the child for decent citizenship.

Al Smith and the Liquor Question

"Al Smith wants us to go back to the conditions that existed in this country ten years ago with his scheme for letting each state set its percentage of alcohol permitted to be sold in intoxicating liquors. For us, it means that Maine will be dry and nearby states will be wet. We know what that cost us in the old days. The decrease in this state in arrests for drunkenness, and the loss in deaths from alcoholism and cirrhosis of the liver tell how beneficial for the State of Maine has been national prohibition, and we intend to continue our fight for it in order to save ourselves from our state," said the Rev. Frederick W. Smith, superintendent of the Christian Civic League of Maine in an address at the East Livermore Camp Ground, recently.

Mr. Smith went on to say, "In his speech of acceptance, the Governor of New York says that we ought to follow the ways of our neighbors and adopt Government control. Which one of our neighbors Mr. Smith, we would ask, for every province that has adopted Government Control has adopted a different system. Shall we adopt the Quebec system, where saloons parade upon the guise of taverns and turn out just as vile results as the saloon? So rotten are the results, that some of our Canadian neighbors are beginning to wonder just what it is that Government Control means. The stockholder says it controls the cash for the Government store and the tavern gets the cash and he gets the charge accounts. If government ownership of the railroads were such a means of a mess, we would get from government ownership of the saloons?"

"Some folks are trying to fool us by saying the President could not do anything to weaken prohibition, but with the same breath they try to tell us that he would strengthen enforcement. If he cannot weaken it he cannot strengthen it. It was Captain Stanton of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment who on last Columbus day made the first statement that all that they needed to get what they wanted, namely, the repeal of the Amendment was one more liberal law upon the bench of the Supreme Court of the United States. They see where they will get that judge of Al Smith is the next President."

"Al Smith has always been the friend of the saloon and the liquor industry. He still is. That is apparent from his own sayings. Further, his own record condemns him. In his reply to the charges against the Prohibition Amendment he admitted that every one of them was true. He did not deny any but attempted to excuse himself for having made them by saying he was in a large company. The charges concerning prostitution and vice still stand. He cannot deny them."

A CENTURY OF RAILROAD HISTORY

Probably few Americans, to whom the spectacle and service of a great railroad train that carries them swiftly and safely over thousands of miles of track is nothing unusual, know that it was one hundred years ago that the modest, experimental antecedents of the great monsters of today came into being in this country.

In 1828 work was started on our first railroad line, the Baltimore and Ohio. And two years later, in 1830, there were but 13 miles of railroad in use. In 1890, after the passage of less than half a century, railroad mileage totaled 412,361; there were 1,833,398 employees, and the lines paid combined federal, state and local taxes of over $1,000,000 a day.

The story of this tremendous progress is one of the greatest of modern American romances. What our grandfathers laughed at were destined to become the necessities of the future. Few people of today realize how the progress of the absurd little engines and cars were the beginning of an industry which was to be called the backbone of modern life.

The railroads were built by men of vision, towards an ideal. They are an example of what American initiative, efficiency and science can do.

Don't pick out for your friend a man whose dog won't follow him.

Very thorough tillage should be practiced throughout the summer on varieties of everbearing strawberries, as an adequate and constant supply of moisture is necessary to insure a large crop of fruit in the late summer and fall. Unless a mulch is used, tillage should be continued until late autumn, and in periods of drought the cultivator should be used as often as once a week.

"INSIDE INFORMATION"

Don't wrap the ice in a paper or cloth "blanket." It is true that you will save ice by so doing, but you will not save food. In order to reduce the temperature in the refrigerator, the ice must melt.

An old-fashioned remedy for a stain made by tar, axle grease, road oil, creosote oil, asphalt or asphalt paint, is to rub lard thoroughly into the stain, and then wash it with hot water and soap. The treatment may have to be repeated. Otherwise one of the solvents, such as carbon tetrachloride, chloroform, turpentine, or benzol may be used.

Watermelon can be served as a first course, like fruit cup or muskmelon, for lunch or dinner. The watermelon should be thoroughly chilled, then sliced, the rind removed, and the flesh cut into convenient-sized blocks which are piled on a plate. NEW ENGLAND THANKS RED CROSS FOR HELP TO FLOOD VICTIMS

3,500 Families Aided in Nine Months' Reconstruction Program;
Organization Spent
$1,200,000.

Letters, resolutions, and statements from individuals, many of whom received assistance from the organization, have poured into national headquarters of the American Red Cross in the last few weeks, testifying to the appreciation of the people of New England for the reconstruction work the organization did following the destructive floods of last November.

Completing expenditures in excess of $1,200,000, its workers were for nine months active in the affected area extending financial assistance to families suffering losses when the torrential rains sent streams tumbling over their embankments to play havoc in parts of five states. The reconstruction program in New York, Connecticut, New Hampshire and Massachusetts was virtually completed some time ago, but the last relief award was just recently made in Vermont, where heaviest losses were suffered.

Of the funds expended, more than $500,000 came from the national treasury of the Red Cross, as contributions from the public to the relief fund totaled only $745,173. Financial assistance was given to 3,500 families, involving approximately 15,000 individuals. This help consisted of restoring homes and other buildings, procuring household goods and furniture, providing clothing, and assisting small business owners to re-establish themselves after a knock on an operating basis.

Farmers, who suffered especially heavy losses in Vermont, assistance was furnished in reclaiming land which had been washed out by the water or covered with silt, stones and other debris, providing new farms where the land was damaged beyond reclaiming, rebuilding homes and barns; rescuing farms with implements and live stock, and providing feed and seedling farmers were in a position to take care of their own needs.

In a statement commenting on this relief program among the farmers, "The National Association of Agriculture E. H. Jones of Vermont, said:

"I regard the farm rehabilitation which has been made possible from funds disbursed by the Red Cross as an extremely important factor in the recovery from the flood which is being made by the State of Vermont as a whole.

"On behalf of the farmers who have received this generous assistance," he said, "I desire to express our hearty thanks and appreciation for it to go with my personal gratification for the agricultural rehabilitation of Vermont has been so liberally aided."

The Vermont State Red Cross Advisory Committee, composed of seven prominent citizens, headed by State Auditor Gates, of Montpelier, said in a formal resolution passed just prior to the closing of the work, that "the Red Cross came to the aid and assistance of the suffering people of the area, furnishing relief in emergency cases by supplying food, clothing, shelter and medical aid to the needy and sick."

"It has in a very substantial way," the resolution continues, "assisted in rehabilitating the loss and damage caused by the flood and has greatly aided in a supreme effort to restore Vermont and her people to a normal condition."

Chairman Gates of this committee, in commenting on the relief work, said he believed that "the spirit which brought the Red Cross to Vermont stimulated rehabilitating activities everywhere in the area, and the rapidly with which we have come back is due in no small degree to the efforts of this organization. It was, indeed, a task, and much credit is due it."

Another expression of appreciation for the reconstruction work came in a recent letter to Chairman John Barton Payne, of the Red Cross, from Fred A. Howland, of Montpelier, Vermont, president of the National Insurance Company. Mr. Howland said he feels that the Red Cross "has been very generous in its handling of the Vermont situation, which undoubtedly presented new and troublesome problems somewhat different than the organization has had to cope with in other parts of the country."

Although the Red Cross has officially closed its relief headquarters in the flood area, many families will continue to receive help for some time. Approximately $193,000 will be disbursed in Vermont by Red Cross chapters within the next few months in the form of trust funds for specially needy families, and for the completion of certain relief projects now under way. This money has already been awarded to specific families, and no new or additional appropriations will be made, Red Cross officials say.

While not comparable in size to the great Mississippi Valley flood of 1927, in which Red Cross expenditures will exceed $17,000,000, the completion of the New England flood reconstruction program brings to a close the most extensive disaster relief task the organization has ever faced in that section of the country.

CAN AN OWL SEE?

Many of us have been brought up to believe that an owl cannot see in the light. Maybe so, and then again maybe not. At any rate a group of boys recently captured a common screech owl in the top of a tree on the outskirts of Philadelphia, carried him to earth, examined him closely as boys scouts are wont to do, and then deposited him upon a low branch of another tree.

The owl flew to a branch higher up on still another tree; thence to a branch lower than a few feet from his nest; and then, with no hesitancy, he dropped into the nest itself. If he could not see, he surely had a wonderful sense of direction.

"I am counting does nothing else to a boy," the scoutmaster said, "and I am sure his mind of the old fairy tales about our common birds and animals."

Wheel Chair Farming Unknown

Work in Field From Sun-up to Dark and do Chores by Candle Light.

Taken from Thomas' Almanac of 1826.

Below is a farm article published one hundred and two years ago. It has the ring of old times, where people respected, moral, religion and law were not ashamed to get a bruise by toil.

The greeting, "I'll tell ye what, brother Yonkers, I'm heartily glad to greet ye once more. Our acquaintance has been so long and so pleasant, that, to me I think a separation would be most grievous. But ye now, what have ye been doing since our last interview? The condition of a farmer is such that he need never be out of employment. His life is filled up with care and watchfulness and continual exertion. 'O fudge,' says Mr. Bookworm, 'what has Capt. Hawgree to do in the winter, except to eat, drink and be merry, and enjoy the fruits of his summer's labor?'"

Now let me tell you, old Paragon, you know nothing about it. With all your plodding I advise you to peep a little into Dr. Dean's book. You will there learn that an attentive farmer is no idler even in the winter season.

Cow House. Farmer Fudge may turn up his nose, if he pleases, and think he needs no teaching in this matter. I shall take the liberty to give my opinion about a cow house though, to be sure it is a little late in the season. The floor over the cattle should be so tight as to prevent the falling of dust, chaff, etc., and so high that a man need not stand in fear of having his head broken by it. Many of our old fashioned cow stalls or stables are none too high for a pigsty, and a man, when he would enter one must squat like a goose to save his brains. Let it be of good width also that the dung may be shoveled back and not discommoded the milkmaid. Let the windows give a good fastening and the windows good shutters to keep out the cold and storm.

Hogsty. A good hogsty is a thing of more importance than many think for. A part of it should be close and warm with a tight roof over it. The other part where the trough is placed should be open. Swine should not be wholly secluded from the weather and sunshine, and they will be injured by having cold and wet lodging. A large part of it should have a wooden floor. Some think that any sort of floor will do well enough to fat hogs in. This is a gross error. The more comfortable your hogs are kept the less nourishment they will require—I like not to see too much fat to a hog.

Asparagus. This is a most valuable plant. It is highly esteemed and easily cultivated. No green which the spring produces is of more account, and it is truly astonishing when our farmers in the interior do not raise it in greater abundance. It serves both for meat, sauce and bread with the help of a little butter and salt. "Give me good fat pork and a hog," says old Simon Watkiss. "As for your sparrow grass and your lettuce," and little fiddles I wouldn't give a snap for them. No fags, not I. I want no such expensive luxuries."

Farmer Fuddle. Farmer Fuddle rises between 6 and 7 gets on his breeches and his shoes slipped, and then "come out here Stoughton's Elks; Strig's Compound of Gin and Jackknife, and Capt. Blackstrap's Boot method of cutting cobwebs. O, there is nothing like it! It has a surprising effect upon body and soul, and the moment he has gobbled it down, it begins to operate, like the inhaling gas, I called on him one morning just after the second drum for takes about 7 or 8 a day, and all was in the wrong. He stormed and scolded and fretted mightily, and seemed to vent a curse upon every body and everything, except his gin bottle; and all only because a hoop had sprung from the water pail! A guinea hen was at the door and kept up a very constant accompaniment through the whole. Never was sound better adapted to sentiment, than in this duet, thought I.

The dairy. A description of an ideal dairy was given for the month of June. Butter. After the butter is churned, it should immediately be washed in several waters to cleanse it from the milk; and in working it, you will find two pieces of wood convenient to be used, for the hand is too warm and is apt to soften it; and some hands will give it a sort of greasy appearance. Now, should my lady of the chum happen to be a snuff taker, O, in mercy deliver me from the filthy product of her dairy. "What! Mr. Saucebox," says Polly Pinch, "if I can't say pudn, it's none of your business, and my fingers are as clean as any body's, I'll have ye know."

Cows. No animals that we keep are more profitable than cows. Farmers acknowledge this, yet few practice according to their belief. Some will keep seven or eight poor, miserable things, which will not average more milk or butter than two good ones, and yet how far more expensive is their keeping.

Newspapers. The stage has come, and the mail is opened! The farmer stops his team in the furrow! The carpenter lays aside his broad ax! The shoe-maker lets fall his lap stool! The blacksmith leaves his iron in the fire! The doctor forgets his sick patient! The lawyer drops his quill, and the parson shuts his Bible! Away hasty they all hasten, greedily for the news! Like hungry hounds around the shambles, longing for the first snap at the offals, they stand, and with feverish impatience, they devour the news. Even old age and decrepitude has essayed to reach the place! Business is stopt and all other pleasures are laid aside until the perusal is finished. Then the farmer and the mechanic and the doctor and the lawyer and the priest and the rest of them, all retire to their different employments, no more satisfied and no more wise, than they were before, but filled with an increased longing for the next arrival of the mail!

Old Orchard. Take the whites of six eggs with a handful of fine beach sand, wash it clear, stir them well together, then boil a quart of molasses down to a candy, and cool it by pouring in cider, and put this together with the eggs and sand into a barrel of cider and mix the whole together. It will keep for many years and be good enough for kings, emperors and presidents.

There is another kind of cider which some seem to prefer, and is made in the following manner, viz. Let your apples lie till they are thoroughly rotten; then take some warm dry and grind them up and immediately press out the juice, and put it up into barrels containing fly blows, rat's dung and maggots. Throw in a few handfuls of bird lime and old tobacco ends and to each barrel five pebbles of duck water. Bung it up with an old stocking, and it will be fit for use from the cask or for bottling at any time. This liquor is preferred by some people to that made in any other manner. Its delicate flavor is equal to the effluvia of a jakes; and the effervescence has sometimes been so powerful as to overturn a man!

The Most Tub. Give me a good sweet barrel. Take 4 quarts of salt, 3 ounces of saltpetre and 5 lbs brown sugar. This will preserve my beef well, rich and sweet. The juices will not be brine enough, if it is well packed. But cheap living is the byword with many who care not hardly what they eat, if it only comes cheap. "My meat is cut, enough without the expense of sugar, salt, saltpetre and such nonsense," said old Gobbel. Now he was worth about $15,000, and yet he would swallow a load for a mincepie. He actually once undertook to munch down a live herring for three companions. The little shiner was just taken from the brook, and the moment he saw the huge jaws open to crumch him, flap he went down the miser's gullet. So they cut open old Gobbel's throat and took out the fish, and he lay ill for weeks; and when he came to pay the doctor's bill, O, how he did groan! "Cheap living, cheap living," old Gobbel would say.

For pickling beef, for 100 lbs. take 16 lbs. fine salt—2 lbs. brown sugar—4½ gallons water, and 6 oz. saltpetre.

The Parting. Hard it is to part with friends and hard to part with life, but there is a harder parting still with some. Wife, children, friends and even life itself are to an avicious man, as dust in the balance, compared to his gold! On this he holds till breath departs, and even in the pangs of death, should you talk to him of charity and the wants of the poor his haggard brow is knit in frowns; his teeth gnash in anger; "ye are robbers all," he exclaims, and casts the last lingering look of his glassy eyes upon his filthy treasures!

Works Hard, Dances, Gains
3 Pounds a Week

"I work hard, dance and have gained 3 pounds a week since taking Vinol. My nervousness is almost all gone."—Mrs. F. Lang.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very first bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious. L. V. Ashton, Druggist.

OXFORD—FORE STREET

Mrs. Cummings' Trip to Vermont. Mrs. Cummings started for Vermont leaving here in company with Mr. and Mrs. E. Oscar Jenkins of W. Pawlet, Vt. Thursday morning, August 30. It was a wonderful, morning, and good road through Norway to Bridgton where their first real halt was made. The greeting given Spaulding Abbott, who with two yoke of his oxen is working on highway beyond Norway Lake, could hardly be counted as a halt as the motor was being counted as a halt a steamer motor was running the few minutes taken, but at Bridgton, a full stop was had. Mr. Jenkins purchased a daily newspaper purchased at near by stand while Mrs. Cummings explored the town and the journey began again, the motor mill, then the journey began again, passing through picturesque hamlets and villages and cities as might be. At noon a rest was enjoyed and lunch eaten by the side of a body of water just outside of Conway, N. H., where the Presidential Range of White Mtns. seemed near by so clearly they were seen. Then the motor was diverted from the direct route to drive to the Weirs and purchased a bag of pop corn. Here a slight shower of rain caused the car windows to be closed as did two other showers on the way, making the occupants realize what a comfort a closed car was in comparison to the old time horse and wagon with an umbrella to withstand the elements. It was soon learned that the reverse of the showers had preceded. One place the traffic being held up 1/2 hour or more as men removed blown over trees and telephone poles and electric line poles out of the highway. All along the Merimette Valley, where the fields and fruit trees were noticed. The traffic was somewhat congested all along the way and twas twilight when Concord, N. H., was reached. A good restaurant was soon located and the party dined. After dinner appeared, even to the dogs, and merrily all continued on the way, arriving at Mrs. Jenkins' parents', Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Estey's, Bagley, about 8 p. m., where a warm welcome was given, even to the dog and the stranger within the gates.

The following day was beautiful too, and a good nights rest enjoyed, yet none but the dog ventured into the day's activities. He ventured out with the young folk, found the pest of a woodchuck that had been taking the kitchen chair as his run. This fastened the old Rover already had in the Estey family, proving his worth. At 4:30 a. m. the clank of the harness being put on the horses, the clamping of bits, the grinding of wheels of a heavy cart in the gravel and the rattling of the harness mingled with subdued murmur of voices, made known that life was stirring and things doing of interest. And when Saturday came and the way was understood and courage strengthened to extent of curiosity aroused, Mrs. Cummings was getting herself into the big wagon to a seat behind the big strong work horses and ready for the start to the dairy over the river where Mr. Estey and son have a large herd of registered Guernsey and modern methods of operating, the milk from the twenty-six cows now being milked from the herd of fifty head. This was all delightful but the part that was the ing was the ride to the milking yard and row sheds a one-half mile by team and shed by auto as the auto "goes around" with the team "goes across" or through the river where Mr. Estey and son have a large herd of registered Guernsey and modern methods of operating, the milk from the twenty-six cows now being milked from the herd of fifty head.
